

Infusion Checklist:

What should I bring to my appointment?

There are several things that you should bring to your infusion appointment. Ask your doctor or healthcare professional if you need to bring anything specific.

Before Your Infusion

The following items may be needed for front desk check-in and your general health assessment:

- Your insurance card
- Your medical history and a list of medications you are currently taking
- Any necessary paperwork if your infusion is in a location other than your doctor's office
- A notepad to take notes or write down any questions you may have

During Your Infusion

Feel free to bring items that can help you pass the time during your infusion. Some centers have televisions and magazines, but you may also bring:

- Blankets
- Comfortable, layered clothes that you can adjust if you become warm or cool
- Phone or tablet loaded with music or movies
- Laptop computer — many infusion centers offer free Wi-Fi access
- Headphones to listen to music or watch movies
- Books, puzzles, games, pencil, or pen
- Water and snacks. Call your infusion center to learn if there are any restrictions about bringing food or beverages. Some centers may even provide snacks
